

Your first line of defence

In today's security landscape, everyone is vulnerable. Organisations large and small face a growing number of sophisticated and targeted cyber threats. These potential security breaches can end up costing huge sums in lost revenue, service disruption reputation and IT resources.

Fujitsu's Threat Monitoring (TM) service provides organisations with an easy and cost-effective way to defend an organisation from attack. Delivered from its world-leading Security Operations Centre (SOC), Fujitsu customers gain the protection of a managed security service. They also benefit from the convenience of simple monthly payments.

What's included in the Threat Monitoring service?

- Rapid email notification about the most critical risks, direct threats and emerging trends that could impact an organisation.
- Rapid flagging of chatter and/or direct cyber threats made on the open Web, social media, hacker forums and other media.
- Ongoing review of threats, or hostile discussions, regarding an organisation's technology stack, external domains, IP ranges, and other areas of focus for potential threats.
- Warnings about exploits, attacks, threats or vulnerabilities related to up to 10 suppliers, industry peers and/or vendors.
- Notifications about breached and/or exposed credentials.
- Daily digest of top trending and emerging behaviour patterns, including Tools, Techniques and Procedures (TTPs) on malicious IP addresses, vulnerabilities (CVEs), hackers and more.
- Daily summary of industry and global cyber events and trends as well as the Weekly Industry Target Trends round-up.
- Manageable opex and transparent pricing for these end-to-end security services.

All of the above covered as standard under a simple, one-year licence subscription with additional extras available for specific security scenarios.
