Banking on digital transformation: New PACT report find the sector is eager to progress.

Digital transformation is vital – and it’s happening. As the financial world evolves rapidly, 51% of Financial Services organizations have started their digital transformation journeys.

But 64% of business leaders worry that they don’t have the digital skills in-house.

Achieving significant returns takes time

Digital is key to the future of banking

Fujitsu can help simplify banking processes with Robotic Process Automation, Application Transformation and digital security protection for data, transactions and AI authentication.

Focusing on what matters to your business is important

Patience is necessary. On average, businesses in this sector expect financial benefits to arrive within just under 2 years, with operational improvements taking 1.7 years. That’s longer than other sectors, but it’s worth the wait.

To deliver digital transformation you need digital skills

Human and Artificial Intelligence (AI) need to work together

87% of Financial Businesses believe that AI will transform the skills they need by 2020, and they’re working to put it in place to support their people and processes.

Co-creating a culture of innovation drives transformation

89% of Financial leaders believe they can rely on a culture of innovation, and most are active in supporting collaboration to achieve it. 63% of businesses are working on, or planning co-creation projects to deliver digital transformation.

Co-creating a culture of innovation drives transformation

89% of Financial leaders believe they can rely on a culture of innovation, and most are active in supporting collaboration to achieve it. 63% of businesses are working on, or planning co-creation projects to deliver digital transformation.

Co-creating a culture of innovation drives transformation

89% of Financial leaders believe they can rely on a culture of innovation, and most are active in supporting collaboration to achieve it. 63% of businesses are working on, or planning co-creation projects to deliver digital transformation.

Co-creating a culture of innovation drives transformation

89% of Financial leaders believe they can rely on a culture of innovation, and most are active in supporting collaboration to achieve it. 63% of businesses are working on, or planning co-creation projects to deliver digital transformation.